About Chandos Publishing

Established in 1998 Chandos Publishing is a leading international publisher specialising in the following fields: library and information science; knowledge management; the internet and web; Asian studies; and mechanical engineering.

Our books are aimed at an international audience of researchers, academics and practitioners concerned with the library and information sector. We pride ourselves on delivering content that is accessible, up-to-date, informative, and meets the current needs of our readers. Chandos Publishing was acquired by Woodhead Publishing Ltd. in 2009. This relationship has allowed our books to reach an even wider audience with an increased presence in North America, Europe and the rest of the world.

Call for Authors

We are always pleased to hear proposals from authors for new books. If there is a subject that does not appear in this catalogue, you can’t find the book you want, or think you could write a book, let us know. Please contact Dr. Glyn Jones, Publisher, to discuss further.

The following information presents our guidelines and processes should an author choose to submit a proposal:

Author’s Questionnaire

Our questionnaire allows the author to outline their proposed book project. This allows the author to present the topic itself, provide a professional and personal biography, and outline the manuscript information (i.e., length, completion date, etc.), the primary and secondary markets and potential competition.

Peer Review Process

New book proposals are peer reviewed. Reviewers are asked to review the proposal and provide feedback via a questionnaire. The comments are then passed on to the potential author of the book.

Commissioning and Manuscript Delivery

When an author has been successful in his/her proposal and has agreed to the book project, they can expect a personal service during the writing process from the publisher and editorial team.

After the manuscript has been received we undertake a very through copy-editing and proof reading of the book and again send it out for peer-review to ensure the content meets the highest academic standards.
